in 2000, wages in nonmetropolitan counties were significantly lower (4.8) than those in metropolitan counties; however, these differences were not statistically significant in 2004.